CANBERRA

MARATHON COURSE
 The National Capital Marathon will take runners past many of the national buildings of the nation's capital and along the shores of Lake Burley Griffin. It is one of the most scenic and fastest courses in Australia.

The first part of the course involves running to and around Australia's Parliament House and through the Parliamentary Triangle (orange line) and then after 10kms, commencing an out and back section, turning at Glenloch Interchange and crossing Lake Burley Griffin twice utilizing the two bridges (pink line). That section of the course is repeated a second time before runners complete the event by running up Telopea Park West and into Manuka Oval for a stadium like finish.
